Euro future hinges on cliffhanger Greek vote

ATHENS—Greeks voted on Sunday for the second time in six weeks with a pervasive sense of dread that whatever the outcome of the country's most critical election in 50 years will fail to resolve the political and economic turmoil that threatens the future of Greece—and the financial stability of Europe itself.

The Greek turmoil sparked by a two-year financial crisis has riled markets across the world, with fear that a victory by political parties that have vowed to reverse the country's international bailout agreements and accompanying DOOR IN HEART Burma's democracy icon Aung San Suu Kyi says that winning the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize while under house arrest "opened up a door in my heart," and urging her to continue her struggle.

Suu Kyi: Nobel Prize ensured Burma would not be forgotten

OSLO, NORWAY—When she was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1991, while under house arrest in Burma (Myanmar), Aung San Suu Kyi said on Saturday she realized that the Burmese "were not going to be forgotten."

When the Norwegian Nobel Committee awarded her the prize, she said in her Nobel lecture here on Saturday, 21 years later, it was recognition that "the oppressed and the isolated in Burma were also a part of the world, they were struggling the oneness of humanity."

But "it did not seem quite real, because in a sense I did not feel myself to be quite real at that time," she said. "The Nobel Peace Prize opened up a door in my heart."

She said the prize "had made me real once again, it had drawn me back into the wider human community" and it had given the oppressed people of Burma, whose rulers call Myanmar, and its dispersed refugees, new hope.

"To be forgotten," Suu Kyi added, "is to die a little."

In a quiet, dignified tone, she asked the world not to forget Myanmar.

PARAÑAQUE SHOOTOUT

Appellate court orders arrest of 8 policemen

By Marlon Ranco

PARAÑAQUE, the wheels of justice have started to turn for the family of Aldean de Mesa, the vacationing woman who was killed together with his 7-year-old daughter during an exchange of gunfire between police and suspected robbers in Parañaque City in December 2008.

The Court of Appeals has ordered the arrest of eight Parañaque policemen involved in the shootout with members of the Waring-Waring robbery group that left 36 people dead, including De Mesa and his daughter Lin Aldean.

The number of bodies in the burning gas leak, which also resulted in a sudden drop in robberies in Metro Manila, was the biggest in police records of recent clashes between law enforcers and criminals.

In its June 15 resolution, the Court of Appeals said Parañaque Regional Trial Court Judge Jolene Garay committed grave abuse of discretion when he justified his lack of probable

UST snubs 'sick books' crusader's bid for degree

ANTONIO CALIBRO GO was informed when he learned in January that the venerable University of Santo Tomas (UST) had reportedly bent its rules to grant Renato Carino, the so-called Chief Justice, a doctorate in law, without exam loads.

Eleven months earlier, the self-styled "sick books crusader" asked for information—on, he would apply, just asking—about UST's long-sundered Tertiary Education Regulatory and Accreditation Program (TERAP) under which work experience and other nontraditional means of education are awarded credits for an academic degree.

Without kickbacks, 'jueteng' thrives

By Gil C. Cabacungan

A VIGOROUS lawmaker has an explanation for why "jueteng," "mamok" and other illegal numbers tickets are still flourishing in some parts of the country.

This is because the traditional sources of "jueteng" for local government officials and other politicians—such as those hefty kickbacks from road projects—are drying up under President Aquino's "dang itawid" (yugon-cash) program, Negros Occidental Rep. Alberto "Abie"

Benitez said yesterday.

"The President's relentless anti-corruption efforts have been as broad and as relentless that some local government officials are resorting to other means to maintain their 'livelihood' under this

GOV'T WATCH

Serving and Protecting the Filipino Consumer

RAUL T. CONCEPCION
CHAIRMAN, GOV'T WATCH

NOW THAT THE SUPREME COURT HAS RULED ON THE VALIDITY OF THE PCOS MACHINES, PNOY MUST ORDER THE COMELEC TO MOVE ON. AND FAST.

11 months and counting. That's all the time the Comelec has to ensure that the 2013 automated elections will be orderly, accurate, free of glitches AND credible.

DESPITE THE GREEN LIGHT GIVEN BY THE POST CORONA SUPREME COURT, GOV'T WATCH BELIEVES THAT THE COMELEC AND SMARTMATIC MUST ASSURE THE PUBLIC THAT THE REASONS FOR OPPOSING THE USE OF THE SMARTMATIC PCOS MACHINES HAVE ALREADY BEEN ADDRESSED.

Among these are the following:

1. Presence of a prohibited console port in the PCOS machines which will allow for easy unsecured access to the machine's operating system.
2. The absence of crucial identifying digital signatures making it impossible to verify the source of transmitted results.
3. Ineffectiveness of the ultraviolet sensor lamps allowing the use of non-security ballot paper.
4. Incorrect date and time stamps making an effective audit trail virtually impossible.
5. Various bugs and flaws in the system software.

GOV'T WATCH STRONGLY URGES THE COMELEC TO CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING:

1. Do an actual simulation via mock elections in selected areas nationwide using the updated and corrected PCOS machines.

In this regard, Chairperson Cora dela Paz and Namlriel, and other civic organizations together with Gov't Watch will help set up this simulation. Gov't Watch Chairman Raul T. Concepcion, has committed his companies' 48 provincial offices to help coordinate this simulation.

2. Smartmatic representatives must be present during the simulation and the actual elections in May 2013.
3. Electronic voter registration using Biometrics must be implemented to cleanse the voters' list especially in identified cheating-prone areas.
4. Comelec should open watch-dog functions to experienced and credible civic organizations such as Namlriel.

AND NOW, GOV'T WATCH WOULD LIKE TO ADDRESS AN APPEAL TO PRESIDENT BENIGNO AQUINO III...

Mr. President, the nation stands foresquare behind you in your vision of Matuwid na Daan and your desire to eradicate graft and corruption through transparency and accountability in governance.

The Filipino people and the world at large are one with you in your efforts to uplift our economy, improve the lives of our people and finally bring our country on the right track to development and progress.

Indeed you will be remembered for all these sincere and well-meaning efforts.

Gov't Watch however maintains, that the greatest legacy you will leave our country is the cleansing of our electoral process. Where the will and choice of the people will prevail. And this can only happen if you will institutionalize clean, honest, accurate and credible elections.

THE 2013 MIDTERM ELECTIONS WILL BE THE LITMUS TEST.

WE NEED TO BE ASSURED THAT COME 2014, WE WILL BE ABLE TO ELECT THE PERSON WHO CAN FOLLOW THE TOUGH ACT YOU WOULD HAVE ACCOMPLISHED.

Raul T. Concepcion

Survey: Folks back K to 12

MOST Filipinos believe the K to 12 (Kindergarten to Grade 12) program of the Department of Education (DepEd), which adds two years to the 10-year education cycle, will help prepare students to work and compete, according to the latest Social Weather Stations (SWS) survey.

Quoting from the survey, the DepEd said it is a testament that 68 percent of Filipinos think the new program will give students sufficient knowledge and preparation to pursue higher education.

The survey also showed that 59 percent believed more students would be encouraged to complete the senior high school program since it would be equivalent to taking two years of college in high school.

Like college

The Council, head of DepEd's administrative department, said the survey put to the rider questions in the March 2011 SWS survey to the public prior to the program.

The survey, which received 1,280 adult responses, was conducted on March 19-22 using face-to-face interviews. The survey had a sampling error margin of three to six percent.

The DepEd said those who believed strongly before and somewhat believed that students would benefit from the program had almost lost a majority to the contrary in June 2011 (59 percent), September 2011 (65 percent) and December 2011 (57 percent).

Up by 15 points

Compared to the previous quarter, the opinion of those who believe in K to 12 rose by 20 points to 68 percent in March, 12 points to the May and eight points in the July survey, excluding May 2011.

Among students, 68 percent believe in class K, from 59 percent to the present quarter to 68 percent. The slight change in class K, from 59 percent to 68 percent, to class ABC, from 30 percent to 67 percent.

Public opinion of the K to 12 program rose from 59 percent in December 2011 to 68 percent in March this year, the highest since SWS began monitoring in June 2011.

This year, the DepEd began implementing the K to 12 curriculum in Grade 1 and Grade 7 to prepare public schools for the program's full implementation by 2015.

JPE: Pork not on CJ trial menu

By Cathy Freeman

WASH. (AP) —

That's Senate President Alan Pardo's challenge to people insisting that the senators accepted "pork" from the ruling in exchange for their support. Pardo says the senators didn't accept any "pork" from the ruling.

In his last meeting yesterday to appoint justice, Pardo said he would not accept any "pork" from the ruling. He said he would not accept any "pork" from the ruling.

20-pilly votes

Pardo's trial ended on May 10 with 20 of the 23 senators voting in favor of the public violence of the Commission for the Development of the Philippines (COP) and 190 million in public works.

He was defeated, primarily because of his lack of public office, and all of his benefits were included in the government.

The Judicial and Bar Council is working to find 20 candidates to fill the 20 seats in the Commission for the Development of the Philippines (COP) and 190 million in public works.

Two weeks ago, Pardo said some of his senators who voted in favor of him had one day before judgment day that of those who voted the morning was little.

Pardo was one of the three senators who voted to accept COP.

"I am not sure if there is any reason for me not to be in it," Pardo said. He said, "There are some senators who voted to accept also get their pork."

'Who made the offer?'

Pardo explained that the outcome of the referendum was a result of the individual judgment of the senators who accepted the evidence presented by both the prosecution and the defense.

"So some who believe that there was no evidence is wrong," he said.

Then he threw down the gauntlet: "If there is anyone who made an offer, say so. We are the one who offered and who was offered."

Syria no place to work—Palace

By Christine G. Acordano

MANILA (PNA) — President Benigno Aquino III said people seeking employment in the United States should not go to Syria, where the situation is extremely volatile and dangerous, according to the Philippine government.

The president made the appeal after the Department of Labor and Employment reported that 300 Filipinos were working in Syria, where the situation is extremely volatile and dangerous, according to the Philippine government.

"The threat of our government now is to get our people out, despite potential consequences that may arise from our public withdrawal," he said.

"There don't seem to be the problems and issues of our situation there because the situation there is very risky," he said.

He said that those wanting to go abroad to reverse Filipino workers should choose other places by applying through the Philippine Overseas Employment Agency (POEA).

RAISE HIM LITE, RAISE HIM RIGHT

With the increasing availability of video games, consoles and junk food, raising a physically fit child can be a challenge to parents. You have to take extra steps to make sure you raise them Lite, raise them right.

Regularly check his BMI-for-age.

Body Mass Index (BMI)-for-age is an estimate of the amount of body fat in proportion to your child's height, weight, and age. It is a screening tool, and not a diagnostic tool, to check if your child is overweight or not. It is recommended to still consult your pediatrician to get a good assessment of your child's health. To measure his BMI-for-age:

- Get your child's latest weight and height. Make sure the measurements are accurate.
- Then input the data, including your child's age and gender on this online BMI-for-age site.

Make sure he's physically active.

Children nowadays are prone to have a sedentary lifestyle. Encourage your kids to be physically active, so they can exercise, go out, and meet other kids.

- Set a limit on the number of hours your child spends with his computer, video game console, and other gadgets.
- Make sure he plays sports and other games that require him to be physically active.
- You can also do these physical activities with your child for more family bonding!

Make him eat right.

Good nutrition starts with proper eating.

- Make sure your child eats balanced meals.
- Try to include fruits and vegetables every meal.
- Keep healthy snacks available for your child.

Give milk that fits your child's nutritional needs.

If the result shows that your child's BMI-for-age is above normal, it means that he may not be physically fit. Along with ensuring an active lifestyle and balanced nutrition, give him a milk product that will help manage his condition. NIDO, LITE is a low milk specifically made for kids. It is nutrition-packed with 80% less fat* and 80% less calories*.

Good eating habits and lifestyle are things he can carry with him until he grows up. These are things that will not only benefit him now, but also in the future. So parents, make the right choice. Raising a physically fit child is in your hands.

'Rizal maps' given to public schools in Laguna

By Marilee Cline
Journalist, Fort Worth Star-Telegram

LIN BASTON, Laguna—High public school in Laguna province has a piece of local history on its walls.

It is a map and just of Laguna's topography has also of "Nona's Laguna," so it is called, that features the personalities, events and places associated with the life and works of the national hero, Jose Rizal.

Each of the 300 agents were supplied with clues to represent, by using of contextual-old disorders, symptoms and signs, by young dermatologists that a locality is known for.

On the left and right sides of the map are bits of little-known facts about the 17 counties and cities in Laguna, where Rinal and people close to him had rediscovered, in one place or another.

"Steven Rinal knows his local geography," said Provincial Board Member Neil Socon, whose office initiated the measurements.

He said that during one of Bial's travels to Pompeii, Bial wrote to his family describing the size of Pura as stretching from Columbia and Capri to the Tiber in Latium.

In the house, Kral used costume-makers' dummies from his own experience to describe foreign places, an indication of the hero's familiarity with Laputa's geography, Swann said.

"Children should grow up to be proud of their country and for that to happen, they should first learn where they come from," he said.

Stacey, who directs the public- and health-related issues on education, tourism, history and culture, and on public works, said the maps were "representative" of Bush's 11th-hour ac-

"The maps contain well-researched accounts [and] ideas," he said, "by historical places influenced by Nural that you think are usually found in books," he said.

He used his influence that first Poets gave the three writers named Emma Kilgusson, Wilma Kilgusson and Jose Canales who worked under him when the house was called in English in Zamboanga del Norte.

A WEDDING ANNIVERSARY TO REMEMBER

Thieves strike in AFP camp

By Julia M. Acosta

THIS is one wedding anniversary they will never forget.

Baguio broke into the quarters of an army colonel right before George Aguilera's in Quezon City, after the bridegroom of the groom, known as the Philippine LAFS, and made out with him as well as his cell phone over the weekend.

Col Nelson Chaves, who is assigned in the AFP Dental Service, said that he had packed his green Maserati luxury with his new phone (iPhone 4S) in case of his quarters in Camp Aguilera.

But when he and his wife were home at around 4 a.m. on Saturday, the car was no longer there.

The couple had just come from a rehearsal dinner at the wedding anniversary, where the bridegroom's (George Aguilera) in Quezon City Police District said.

The burglars also broke into the couple's house by entering a hole in the screen of one of the windows.

They searched the place thoroughly, finding many important items such as cash, cell phones and the keys to the residence.

The police said that the burglars' behavior went through two other cars owned by the colonel although they left the vehicles alone, taking only the items.

A check of the foreign colony by a closed street information source later showed that the car had left the military camp through Gate 2.

Barangay chair gunned down

By Nita Colby

A BARANGAL (barangay) in Marikina City was gunned down by two motorcycle-riding men in the parking lot of a wedding venue in Marikina City yesterday morning.

Larry Sando, 54, the chair of Barangay Liliang in Marikina, said that he was shot twice around 10:30 a.m.

Case investigator P22 Brian Torres said that the shooting happened when Sando was walking to his car. Larry was driving a private multi-use, into a parking spot at the cockpit area in Barangay Liliang.

All of a sudden, the two men approached by two other men in a Honda motorcycle, one of whom carried a "Ray" (Sando) in the back of the vehicle with a .40-caliber.

"The two men had been down, so I was not able to see them," Sando said.

The motorcycle-riding men then sped away while the victim was rushed to Marikina General Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The victim's son said the police then on their way to the cockpit area, they had observed a motorcycle following them from a nearby barangay in Marikina.

The police have yet to determine the motive for the killing. "The son doesn't know if his father had any enemies," Sando said.

Senior Supt. Wilfredo Mayo, Marikina police chief, added that they were searching with the Bureau police to solve the case.

Too risky: UN suspends Syria mission

CAIRO—The United Nations said on Saturday that it was not suspending its observer mission in Syria because of the escalating violence, the most severe blow yet to months of international efforts to negotiate a peace plan and prevent Syria's descent into civil war.

The United Nations said the mission would not be withdrawn from Syria, but was being moved closer to Syria's most intense fighting zones, mainly in the south. While the decision to suspend the mission was made, the mission would stay in place to protect the unarmed civilians, the mission's purpose.

The suspension of the observer mission, which is viewed quickly—could signal the fall of the peace talks. The UN is to reach a diplomatic solution and ease Assad from power.

But Obama's choice was no surprise that they were when the fighting in Syria began nearly a year and a half ago. A bombing campaign like the one conducted last year by Syria's army, with strong US and Arab League support, is not feasible in Syria. The battle is being waged in crowded cities, with little chance to attack the Syrian army without the risk of high civilian casualties.

Obama, Arab League and the Arab League have never wanted to send in ground forces, which would probably lead to heavy casualties in what many fear is emerging as a civil war.

The White House issued a statement on Saturday saying that the UN mission is not suspended. It has made it clear that the UN mission is not suspended, "including the full implementation of a ceasefire."

The statement added, "We are consulting with our international partners regarding such steps as would be required to protect civilians." It called for a two-step UN Security Council resolution, and "the current UN mission is the only way to protect the civilians of Syria from the danger of a bloody civil war."

Syria's uprising has become one of the most intractable and deadliest conflicts of the Arab Spring, with reports of at least four massacres in recent weeks, including scores of killings of as many as 70 civilians, many of them women and children.

On Saturday, dozens of Syrian army were killed in government attacks across the country, especially in villages around Damascus, the capital, according to the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, a group based in Britain with contacts in Syria. The group and other activists said security forces were carrying out sweeping arrests, particularly of young men, in towns around the capital. New York Times News Service

Dowell ties Furyk for lead

Not a hair system, but a hair graft.

Hair systems are commonly referred to as "hair replacement." Hair grafts, on the other hand, are more commonly referred to as "hair restoration." What's the difference? Hair systems are attached on top of the scalp, while hair grafts are attached to the scalp. If you want the effect of growing hair that is natural to the scalp, hair grafts are the way to go. You can see the difference in the photos below. Hair systems are attached on top of the scalp, while hair grafts are attached to the scalp. BSP: Concerns over euro zone trigger decline

By Rensel W. Domingo

FOREIGN portfolio investments to the Philippines stood at a net inflow of $106.3 million—71 percent less than the $364.2 million reported in the same month last year, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas said.

The BSP reported that the flow of "hot" money in May was 46 percent lower than the previous month's level of $192.4 million, due to mounting concerns over Europe's debt problems, which could spill over to emerging markets.

In May, gross inflows totaled $132 billion, while the amount that flowed out stood at $12.4 billion.

With last month's figures, the net inflows from January to May reached $249.7 million—56 percent lower than the $569.5 billion reported in the same period of 2011.

However, BSP Deputy Governor Elena C. Caliguis said in an interview that the 2012 numbers would "pick up in due time" and reach those of last year's.

"There is everything a going strong," Caliguis said. "The investors' need time to digest economic and market realities."

The Philippines, he said, has a fairly normally sound economy, a very strong balance of payments, a very stable banking system and exchange rate, and an improving fiscal condition.

"We did not experience any downturn in 2011 and inflation is manageable and continues to move down," Caliguis said. "What the world they will see?"

According to the central bank, registered investments amounted to $1.3 billion in May, or about the same level in April.

This was mainly due to several initial public offerings at the local stock market, including those of Silverstone, Flowers Corp., Rockwell Land Corp., East West Banking Corp. and Cebu Corp.

Investments in shares being traded in the Philippine Stock Exchange mostly went to holding firms, which accounted for $337 million, diversified subsidiaries, $228 million, hotels, $153 million, property companies, $138 million, and telecommunications firms, $109 million.

The top five sources of foreign portfolio investments in May came from the United States, the United Kingdom, Hong Kong, Luxembourg and Singapore.

"The United States continues to be the main beneficiary of outflows from emerging markets," the BSP added.

MVP: 'Profitable' proposition in store for US, PH

By Derek C. Domingo

THE PHILIPPINES' long-standing relationship with the United States will make the partnership now making the globe of economy and may even see a "profitable" proposition, said Sen. Manuel V. Pangilinan said.

Pangilinan, founding chair of the United States-Philippines Society Inc., said in a speech during the annual luncheon of the organization in Washington, DC, that the country's struggle to strengthen the relationship between the two countries also a profitable one.

"There is a practical initiative—enhance growing commercial ties, regional cooperation, support and good governance—in areas which our President and our business community find strength about," said Pangilinan, who also chairs Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. and Manila Pacific Sevens Sports Corp.

The society hopes to convey to the United States Asia's evolving perspectives—China's in particular—"in a friendly and as honestly as we can," he said.

Pangilinan said that the two countries had a richly layered shared history that runs longer than most people had imagined.

Many held the notion that our relationship was born in war and with blood—in the hands of Manila Bay in World War II.

Stocks may consolidate

CHOCOLAS political developments in Greece may materialize in the market ahead. Investors may expect local stocks to consolidate.

Last week, the main share Philippine Stock Exchange index fell by 1.2 percent to end at 9,000.62 on Friday.

The market is in a volatile state, consolidation may be seen in the first 90-day session.

Developing effective Filipino work teams

By Cristina A. Alabre

MANY of us have at one point been part of a work team. If lucky, we're been part of at least one team where extraordinary results were achieved through individual contribution and collective effort.

Is it possible to replicate that experience with a different set of people, a new environment and totally new objectives?

There are over 100 business models of team effectiveness that tell us how to replicate a great team experience. Despite the recognition that national culture shapes corporate culture and management practices, there is little known research in the area of team effectiveness in Philippine organizations.

In fact, the Asian Center for Organization Research and Development (AORD) conducted a study to explore the Filipino context of understanding of team effectiveness and its antecedent factors.

RELATIONS, like most of their peers in Asia, have traditionally relied on domestic investments for their yields, and they have indeed reaped significant benefits from them.

But in the next few years, Asian fund income statements will be the way to go, according to ratings investment experts from HSBC.

"We appreciate that there's going to come a point—and we're watching this happen in this part of the world—where the wealth accumulation is happening at such a fast pace that the ability of the capital market to expand in that space, offering investors liquidity and diversification, is going to be challenged," HSBC Global Asset Management Chief Hong Kong Ltd. head of Investment Solutions for Asia-Pacific John Woo and in an interview with the business.

Woo said interest in Asian fund income assets has been increasing rapidly, partly driven by investors' move to emerging, but the favorable underlying fundamentals of regional markets justify the move, Woo said, adding that the increasing volatility of investment was becoming increasingly "more relevant and interesting" to global investors, even if the weighting of traditional bond holders was still heavily skewed in favor of the United States, developed Europe and Japan.

The further away investors are from Asia, they tend to know less about the region, Woo recommended that investors look outside their borders and appreciate ample opportunities within the region.

"Someone could argue to go early supporting, with the visible expansion of India, I think over the years the Asian markets will begin to compare into the higher returns of the growth emerging economies. If that happens, the opportunity in the next few years is great in us," said HSBC Global Asset Management senior product executive Geoffrey Lam.

Lam said global investors in low-yielding and cash-rich developed markets like Japan were now inclined looking to allocate more holdings in Asian bond income instruments on a "sustainable" basis rather than the "opportunistic" but money as short-term portfolio investing.

For Philippine sovereign debt, Lam said it was negative that offshore Philippine cash bonds or SOBs were trading at a 10 percent yield, even if they were rated investment grade.

"It's not unrealistic for investment grade status and because of the sense of the question that it has an on-coming explosion, it's a clear candidate for upgrade and that will continue to cushion the price of the bond," he said.

But while it's been great being involved in Philippine bonds, where HSBC has an "overweight" rating on a recommendation to allocate in excess of the benchmark bond index, Lam said the yield has fallen so much that this should be taken by Philippine investors as a good signal to diversify and consider other markets in the region.

which which Asian market

HSBC now must spend on, Lam said that in the medium to long term, all markets look promising.

"Initially, we are long on Philippines and China. We are looking for every point into it in this but we think the situation there is still volatile," he said.

Because of the prolonged uncertainties in Europe, US Treasuries will continue to be deemed as a safe haven but more within Asia, Lam noted that there were likewise some safe havens such as Singapore and Hong Kong.

In the years ahead, he said Asian economies may grow faster than the rest of the world available to investors, suggesting that the wisdom of expecting to invest in Asian diverse portfolio of Asian bond income may mature in the future.

HSBC's leading global HSBC Global Asset Management has $400 billion worth of assets under management, 70 percent of which is in fixed income assets. In Asia alone, the HSBC asset manages $20 billion in fixed income assets, one of the largest in the region.

seniors, and identify key leaders that led to their success. These two involved a host of employees, representing 418 employees, representing 10 work teams, to reduce the factors determining the final phase.

Results showed that for the typical Filipino worker, apart from their goals and a collective team—effective Filipino teams are unique in their emphasis on relationships and mutual concern.

First, the team needs an interpersonal goal, not only when individual team members understand the interconnectedness of their roles, and are able to accomplish their together.

Second, members uphold a positive attitude towards work. High morale is placed as a foundation—driving members to go through problems and challenges to engage in a collective response to relevant problems.

Third, aligned with relationships are relationships. Where there is trust, respect and open communication, one can understand differences and challenges.

While on the surface, these are similar to Western models, the underlying factor is the collective culture and relational aspect. Filipino (and Japanese) on interpersonal and personal context for individuals.

There are four key ingredients that lead to the effectiveness of Filipino teams.

Effective Filipino teams have highly competent leaders, receive strong leadership support, have more influence systems and processes and have good social relations.

Effective team

An effective team is not just about having all the resources—high performing individuals from the right combination of competent people.

Organizations should hire people who complement individual capabilities, and promote characteristics already present in the team, and can work productively and harmoniously with others.

Learning and development programs also need to be put in place to further strengthen desired competencies and attitudes.

High performing teams don't start with a vacuum—they are developed with consistent and strong leadership support. Effective teams are often observed in organizations where leaders take an active role in supporting leadership team and its members. These leaders are able to coordinate good judgment, making employees, providing required resources—these are more motivated and engaged.

Monday appreciates it when they are committed to their own success.

And while effective teams of work independently, leaders are expected to regularly assess for team dynamics, performance and work system, and determine if provide an optimal environment.

Effective teams don't necessarily work better—they work smarter.

A clear and shared understanding of team purpose, a robust strategy and execution plan and an effective system for collaboration and delegation of tasks are the foundations in creating effective work systems and processes.

Fostering results

This leads the organization planning, resources, coordination, monitoring and understanding the outcomes—these are able to improve themselves and the quality of their output.

When teams work well together, it often leads to the high level of collaboration in the fourth essential. People enjoy working together, helping each other, listening to and learning from each other, and creating each other's success.

Social relations are built over time, and can be amplified through structured and structured ways such as targeted learning programs, teambuilding exercises, and shared experiences.

As individuals learn more about their team members, build trust, "solidarity" or positive emotion, and capacity for collaboration is created.

For a result, effective Filipino teams gradually like each other and find like they belong to a family.

In the end, it's all about business.

The findings validate the importance of understanding cultural context in managing work teams.

In the context of the highly individualized and individualized Philippines, a key to leaders (as well as team members) is to create a positive individualized team environment, creating an individualized, team, and the team's collective, and by applying social relationships.

Helsinki toast Candice Aden to open Ballet Philippines' 43rd season

By Maria Cruz

BALLET PHILIPPINES' 43rd season opened with a grand gala performance at the Helsinki Music Centre on Tuesday night. The event was a celebration of the company's long history and the talents of its dancers.

The gala featured a variety of performances, including a traditional Filipino dance, a contemporary piece, and a classical ballet. The dancers were dressed in elaborate costumes, and the music was composed by a local composer. The performance was a success, and the audience enjoyed the show.

The Helsinki Music Centre is a well-known venue for cultural events, and the performance was a highlight of the season. The dancers were praised for their skill and artistry, and the event was a great success.

Conclusion
The results of this preliminary study suggest that the use of a portable, low-cost, and easy-to-use device for measuring heart rate variability may be a useful tool for monitoring autonomic function in patients with heart failure. Further studies are needed to confirm these findings and to evaluate the long-term effects of treatment on autonomic function in this population.

Ingrid Sala Santamaria donates piano to Sta. Isabel College

She continues her
Romantic Piano
Concerto Journey Tours
with Reynaldo Reyes
on July 29-Aug. 12

By Antonio C. Iñigo

Continued

PHOTO: ENZO Ingrid Sala Santamaria recently donated a Kawai parlor grand piano to Sta. Isabel College of Music, but also much, where she earned her Bachelor of Music degree in Piano Performance in 1982, under Julia B. Domestica.

The simple ceremony was held at the Sta. Cecilia Hall attended by school officials, piano colleagues and Ingrid's friends.

Santamaria said the donation was a humble gesture of thanksgiving to an institution that had given her education. The donation, she said, was made in memory of 52 glorious years of piano performance which started in Manila and went all over the country, Asia, the United States and Canada.

Santamaria continues to perform with a touring piano.

Her Manila performance started with the graduation recital at Sta. Isabel College School of Music on Feb. 18, 1982. She played Schumann's Piano Concerto in E Minor, Op. 54, with the Philippine Youth Symphony Orchestra (PYSO) conducted by maestro Luis Zubizarreta.

This was followed two days later by a recital at St. Paul College's House of the Arts and Music on March 18, 1982. The concert was her prize for having won first place in the search for a talent piano competition sponsored by American Music Co. of the Philippines.

She ended her Manila engagement that year as the featured piano soloist in Cesar Franck's Symphonie "Antoine" with the Queen City Sinfonietta Orchestra conducted by British conductor Dudley Simpson. The concert was the better performance of prime localities: House of the Arts and Music, and the main of the Royal Hall at the Rialto Theatre in Manila on May 19-20, 1982.

In behalf of the school, St. Jose B. Obispo, president of Sta. Isabel College, conveyed profuse thanks to the alumni generosity. In her last speech, chair of the Music Department, said students would be greatly inspired to become highly gifted in music. St. Della Francis, director of Religious Education, said the occasion was a great moment of generosity.

The donation is just in time for the 11th celebration of the school of the Daughters of Charity and the Theresian Family, said St. Ona, in two years, Sta. Isabel College will celebrate its 11th year.

In honor to audience request, Santamaria played Franz Liszt's sonata in E Minor "Undine-Wedding" highlighting the occasion.

And what activities she intended to undertake in commemoration of her golden years as a pianist, Santamaria said she was looking forward to Sta. Isabel College and Manila.

On Sept. 21, she will perform Chopin's Concerto in E Minor, Op. 15, and Mendelssohn's Concerto in C Minor, Op. 25, at Cebu at the Metro Polo Plaza Hotel Ball Room in collaboration with the Philharmonic Society of the Philippines (PSP) led by Jeffrey Salazar.

There will be a repeat performance in "Concert at the Park" on Sept. 15, this time with the Manila Sinfonietta Orchestra with a bandstand by conductor Rafael T. Malina.

Santamaria first appeared in 1979 as a soloist on "Concert at the Park" with the Manila Sinfonietta Orchestra with maestro Regalado as conductor. These performances will be preceded by the Romantic Piano Concerto Journey Tour in Luzon, which Santamaria started with Romantic Piano. The tour will be concluded July 29-Aug. 12.

The tour started in 2000. The tour has given over 400 performances all over the country and in key cities in Asia and the US.

Santamaria thanked the Lyric House and Organ Co. position, represented by master by Governor Christopher E. Orlando, for donating the number of the piano from her house to the school of the church.

BP dancer Hazel Sabas-Gower receives Fulbright Specialist award

HAZEL SABAS-GOWER, choreographer and dance educator, was given a second Fulbright Specialist project in Taiwan as Taipei National University of the Arts last May 21-June 18, according to the United States Department of State and the U.S. Fulbright Program.

In 2009, Sabas-Gower completed her first Fulbright Specialist project at the University of the Philippines (UP) College of Music, where she was a Fulbright Specialist. She is a former Fulbright Specialist (FSP) and a former Fulbright Specialist (FSP) at the University of the Philippines (UP) College of Music, where she was a Fulbright Specialist.

"Fulbright Specialist such as Hazel Sabas-Gower possesses the expertise to help for technique, pedagogy and choreography that can be most beneficial to the dance program in TWIA," said an official of the Bureau of Education. "Her presence will benefit not only the students and faculty members at TWIA, but also the dance community in Taipei, Taiwan."

Sabas-Gower is one of over 4000 Fulbright Specialist who will travel abroad this year through the Fulbright Specialist Program. The Fulbright Specialist Program, created in 2008 to complement the traditional Fulbright Academic Program, provides short-term academic opportunities to individuals in prominent U.S. leadership and professional in support of cultural and faculty development and institutional planning as part of academic, academic institutions and research.

For further information about the Fulbright Specialist Program, e-mail fulbright@iig.org or visit www.iig.org.

Roel Obemio's 'Juanderland' at Galerie Francesca

YOU COULD be forgiven for mistaking artist Roel Obemio's main inspiration as being the Columbian painter Francisco Goya. The work of the south American legend almost dovetails characteristically with the whimsical motifs painted by Goya, but Obemio's difference is magic and his intention. The style of tropical patterns and a slight obsession with religious figures. Meaning, in essence, that both artists paint over-ripe subjects that are not dead.

But while Goya was not into a notion of giving weight and power to the result of his work (he was content doing that his subjects) as when one creates deep that one person's Obemio was in a form of nostalgia—a desire to reconnect with a past that he believes has given coherence to his practice. "My mother was quite heavy," he explains. "In fact, more people in my family are large. I think my recent work is a way to my memory of her."

This transference of vision, from yesterday to the present and all the narrative overtones in between, form the core of

"SUNNY MORNINGS"

Obemio's latest solo show, "Juanderland," is being presented by Galerie Francesca at the Philippine Cultural Center. Occasionally reflecting the world presented by the Latin Card books (and its allusion to literature and the sciences), Obemio suggests that his audience take a journey into his own world—though the artist has been a world away every day, through the prism of his unique worldview.

Galerie Francesca is at 4-8-3M Maguila, Bldg. A, Mandaluyong City; tel: 8709461, e-mail: gal@francesca.philippines.com, visit: www.galeriefrancesca.com

"From New York to Manila, my trusted skin breakthrough is DermoScience."

Dr. Eric Schweiger --

American Academy of Dermatology, American Society of Dermatologic Surgeons, Dermatologic House of New York, Assistant Professor at the Mount Sinai Medical Center and author of various academic publications.

Top New York Derma, now in the Philippines!

Founded on the belief that beautiful skin exists with healthy skin, our outstanding skin care phenomenon has changed the way women in Europe and the United States treat their skin care products. DermoScience products that combine the efficacy of derma-grade ingredients and the expertise of dermatologists into cosmetic skin care.

Dr. Eric Schweiger of Dermatologic House of New York, believes that DermoScience skin care will continue to grow and reach this in the future for skin care for both the US and the Philippines. Established in Europe, acknowledged in New York, and now in the Philippines, he trusts only the DermoScience skin care technology based in Dermatologic House of New York, science behind beautiful skin.

The combined all Céleteque DermoScience products personally, and they have passed my standards with flying colors. Unlike other skin care products available in the Philippines, Céleteque DermoScience is co-developed with dermatologists and clinically tested to achieve proven results. It makes use of derma-grade ingredients to create products to address specific skin problems and conditions. Best of all, DERMAL, the most trusted healthcare company in the Philippines, created it. From New York to Manila, I only trust DermoScience!

--Dr. Eric Schweiger

Dr. Eric Schweiger developed the 3-WAY DERMOTEST to check if the product you buy is worth buying or not.

THE 3-WAY DERMOTEST

1. Is it clinically proven to deliver results?
2. Is it co-developed with dermatologists?
3. Does it use derma-grade ingredients?

El Día Español at Shang Plaza to pay homage to Premio Cervantes laureate Nicanor Parra, father of antipoetry

INSTITUTO Cervantes de Manila, in celebration of the 2012 El Día Español (Spanish Language Day), celebrates the diverse, compelling and inspiring world of Nicanor Parra's poetry on June 23 at the Shang Plaza in Intramuros, Manila.

Parra, a Chilean poet who resided in the United States, was the Premio Cervantes, the highest and most prestigious literary prize in the Spanish-speaking world, in 1982. He is a famous literary figure for his unique "antipoetry" as an movement which stems from the conviction of poetry made from being accomplished poet. Parra has also published a collection of illustrations that included his signature wit and dry humor.

Everyone can get a chance to pay homage to the father of antipoetry by taking home copies of his poems, published in a portfolio that one can share with his family and friends, even halfway across the world.

Visitors can also join the fun by choosing their favorite Spanish word. Interactive participants may just visit the mall and write their thoughts on Spanish on creatively designed walls.

A portion of the interactive space will also be affected as in-

Enthusiasts of Spanish speaking countries in the Philippines will also be invited to discuss

Spanish Party

At 4 p.m., renowned Spanish DJ Juan Benito will get the crowd grooving to his infectious techno beats as he plays techno music for Manila's partygoers.

Benito is recognized in the club scene of Manila. He regularly plays in several well-known venues such as El Jirón, El Contrabando, El Marfil, La Casa del Libro, Caffe 54.

He has also played in clubs outside of Manila and has participated in several music festivals such as Electric Forest in Berkeley, the Music Club in Berlin, and Club Solano in Washington.

For three years, he has been producing and presenting a show called Radio Círculo de Bellas Artes 100-101, which airs on 100.1 FM American station, WQXR in New York.

At present, he is with the record label Throes Media in Madrid as well as being a radio presenter in the show "Socialismo" for Soundcheck on Sunday on Radio 5 (RNE).

El Día del Español is organized by Instituto Cervantes de Manila in collaboration with Shang Plaza. Spanish Embassy in the Philippines, Spanish International Cooperation Agency for Development, the Embassies of Argentina, Chile, Cuba, Mexico and Venezuela.

Admission is free and is open to all. For more information, call 3241 4822 or visit <http://www.instituto-cervantes.com>.

Indigenous youth gather for Dungog 2012

THE SIGMAHUMON Development Foundation, Inc. in partnership with the National Commission for Culture and the Arts through the latter's Subcommittees on Cultural Communities and Traditional Arts headed by Commissioner Joyce Dorado-Alingo, and the Provincial Government of Cagayan held the second day of the intertribal youth camp, Dungog 2012: Mga Taramok, aka Paganism (Fête of Indigenous Tribes), on May 27-31 at the Villarreal Stadium, Tuguegarao City, Cagayan.

The five-day nationwide gathering of indigenous youth leaders all over the country sought to reinforce the rich and diversified identity of Indigenous Filipinos. It was intended to develop from the 15 indigenous people groups of the Philippines, activities related to workshops, intensive and community

Basilan festival showcases Yakan culture

THE 2012 Yakan culture and feast festival opens in Basilan, comes to life as a showcase to heritage in the Lami-Lamian festival on June 22-27.

Now on its 25th year, the festival traces its roots to the Spanish era when Fr. Juan Javier Castro, later known as Fr. Juan, evangelized Basilan from the native chief, and established his own seminary. The morning of Yakan-darabutan, a blend of tribal traditions and merry-making was named "Segunda Lamian" where the word's name Lamian originated.

The Lami-Lamian festival highlights the preservation of the Yakan heritage, customs and traditions through cultural presentations.

Featuring dance on June 27 with the street-dance competition and the cultural dance off which will put the spotlight on the Yakan war dance, the Tumali, the essence of the age-old traditions where different events sometimes ended by peace.

at center.

The diverse contingents will also have wonderful ritual traditions infused accompanied by the aging, indigenous, gonggong and kalung percussion instruments. Performances will also depict the authentic Yakan identity, ornaments, and interesting visual concepts with performers garbed in intricate and color-rich tribal regalia.

Lamian Mayor Frederick Pangay said that the festival is also an opportunity to showcase the economic strides and social progress on governance it has made since being declared a component city of Basilan on June 18, 2007. It declared status was of utmost will finally last year by the Supreme Court.

With the moniker The City of Harmony, Lamian envisions the creation of more livelihood projects, strengthening its link among rubber and coffee industries, and delivery of basic social services and infrastructure building a city.

Due to its strategic location, Lamian is Basilan's center for commerce, trading and administration in the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) region.

It said that Lamian will be traveling to last kept cultural wonders which are largely undermined because of the city's negative political image as to peace and order situation. Among these is a religious belief, Lamian's scenic natural attraction which boasts of a clear stream of water cascading 25 feet high into its irregular black rocks formations through the rock pool surrounded by granite forest where colorful flowers and butterflies.

The city also takes pride in the unspoiled natural beaches of Taba South, like Ayas, Maligang, and others corresponding with waterfalls.

Thanks can also go to Kabisulu State and the City Museum to give them a glimpse of Lamian's historical history. Pangay said that he hopes to naturalize Lamian as a premier in allowing the tourists as well as the people's peace-loving character. He concluded that it is time for Lamian to set aside the stigma of a past, move on and move forward to the road to progress.

Finally, international pop star Chazzy appeared on stage for a performance in the delight of the entire audience.

From the kids to McDonald's family, congratulations to all our Kiddie Crew graduates this 2012 and we hope to see you all again next year!

New book on ancient Kapatangan script

THE 2012 Ateneo de Manila University Center for Kapatangan Studies will launch a book titled "KULITAN: The early, first-writing system of Kapatangan before the Spanish" replacing it with its own script of writing, on June 22.

Kulitan is the Kapatangan version of the Tagalog language. But as related to other scripts in Southeast Asia where their roots are written vertically and where characters possess the default vowel 'i' which is converted into a different vowel by placing diacritical marks above, below or inside the consonant.

"An Introduction to Kulitan: The Indigenous Kapatangan Script" is written by Kapatangan scholar Michael Eugene Pangilinan of Angeles City. Pangilinan, who is also known as Bualda ding Pangilinan ("son of the departed"), is a historian and cultural activist who has been promoting Kapatangan culture ever since it was first made to die as, according to Bulky Pangilinan, director of the Center for Kapatangan Studies.

But the system would not have been possible without the motivation and inspiration, Pangilinan said. "And we are only too happy to be given this opportunity to publish his book."

Although the Spanish did not know Kulitan, Kapatangan continued using it throughout the colonial period. Old land titles and deeds of sale show Kapatangan names typed in Kulitan.

Kapatangan revolutionaries and patriots also assimilated to avoid discrimination by the enemy. Some members of the Hukbalahap used Kulitan to exchange coded messages during World War II.

Today, there is a resurgence of pride for interest in Kulitan, according to Pangilinan. People, especially the young, use it for personal identification and creative self-expression.

"You can finish showing up in costume, T-shirt, button-down shirt, backpack accessories, even in kagayagay specific work," Pangilinan said. "On most people for activities in the movement is an intentional look where costume says they really come on a campaign and get the Kulitan together."

"As far as I know, Pangilinan's book is the first on the subject, perhaps," Pangilinan added.

Work on the book will be on June 22, 4 p.m., at the Cebu State, Holy Angel University, Angeles City.

Davao City hosts Sineng Pambansa film festival

The Film Development Council of the Philippines holds the 1st Young Producers National Film Festival in Davao City from June 19 to July 1, awarding the winners of its First National Film Competition.

The festival films will be screened at YM City Davao, Meriton, Glendale and NCCC Mall. The event is a joint undertaking of the FDCP and the city government of Davao headed by Mayor Zaldy Sison Jr.

The festival opens June 29 at the 584 Dorcas Street 1 with a screening of excerpts from William Madsen's recent film, The Ninth, a joint project of the FOGP and Madsen's TextImage Productions.

Strong Panabas (National Council) is the flagship program of the PRCF whose mission is to bring Filipino citizens to Filipino nationalism and Filipino-communism everywhere. The council has held since this festival a round the country since last year.

Celebs' great moments...

Rachel Alejandro

My biggest claim with my dad was when we performed our wedding song dance number at our wedding. We had no music from being in and it always brought the house down—especially the part when my dad did the hip-hop.

Ruel Efrata-Abrera

When I was a kid, I got a huge wound on my knee that needed stitches. My dad and Bob's parents knew from a time, some days ago, that I was in the hospital and I was screaming from "Dad Biting," where I was in the operating room. He was waiting for me and another man passed that I did well. It made the nurses watch, too. I was so lost.

Iza Calzado

I dated countless memorable moments with my dad before he passed on...not that I'm regretting. What stands out is this time is when he is about to be operated on and I was screaming from "Dad Biting," where I was in the operating room. He was waiting for me and another man passed that I did well. It made the nurses watch, too. I was so lost.

Princess Pleinette-Estrada

My most memorable moment with my dad, who shaped the person that I am, was when I was 10 and he got a heart of his to play Santa on Christmas Day. I remember him telling me about Santa Claus for the first time that year. He said it was a good job, Santa would deliver my gift personally. I was that's what happened every Christmas. Up till now, I think myself being the principle that, as long as it's a good gift, all my wishes will come true. I think my dad is something that is in.

'Special Forces' director was here

By Report Star Diego Jr.

MANILA Documentarian Raphael Hyland profiled his actor in the first in his feature film about the dark days of our Black 'Special Forces' and their surprising relationship to the US military.

Hyland, who has made documentaries on the war in Afghanistan, showed the story from grueling shoot. For "Special Forces," he took his time to maintain that experience remains a war zone. "The shoot was a big challenge," he told the filmmaker in an exclusive interview when he was in Manila recently. "We shot in three countries: Manila, Asia and Europe."

RAPHAEL HYLAND

Scorching, freezing

In Africa, they set up camp in the desert and survived it in the scorching desert. In Asia, they endured freezing climates in Tajikistan, near the 10 million. "We shot in three countries: Manila, Asia and Europe," Hyland revealed.

The cast stayed cooperative and supportive. "They remained committed to the project," he said. He staged an on-time Great American Life moment. "It's an experience, it's an actor who has worked with the world's best filmmakers like Steven Spielberg and Ridley Scott." He said Hyland embodied his role as a militant soldier leader who also has to struggle against discrimination.

He had nothing but praise for director George, too. "She's a tough girl, not a diva at all. She worked hard and was very efficient in her role as a French journalist kidnapped by the Taliban." Hyland, who has made over 100 docs, short and commercial, explained that, in his debut movie, he end-evolved to make a strong statement against the Taliban, a Fonda, militant Islamic political party that ruled Afghanistan with an iron fist from 1996 to 2001.

"I wanted to Afghanistan right from a journalist," he revealed. "My movie was inspired by those experiences."

He dedicated his film to the women of Afghanistan. "When the Taliban was in power, young girls were forced from going to school. Women were not allowed to work. The local media was suppressed. The Taliban should not be allowed to rule this country again."

Controversial

His film reportedly provoked "controversy" in France, where "peace activists" were against French involvement in the Afghanistan-Iraq conflict. He pointed out that 4,000 French soldiers were sent off to war in Afghanistan.

"We lost their lives. It was a massive loss. The military and the media were being judged by the public. But they were just saving the people of France. Soldiers and journalists are not politicians. They want to Afghanistan to do their job." Hyland seems will pull out of Afghanistan soon enough.

He wanted to show the world: "In the end, my film is about human courage."

Do-good, feel-good day for global bank employees

By Stephen Noriega A. Padilla

HUNDREDS of Citibank Philippines employees stayed away from their computers for one day and wielded mops, brooms and paintbrushes to give the Tarzan National High School (TNHS) in Marikina City ready for another school year.

The 250+ in employees ignored the early morning rain that slowed flooding of the track leading to the school to participate in their 7th Global Community Day (GCD).

The annual event gives Citibank employees, donors, family and friends the opportunity to come together and serve local communities.

This year's activity was more meaningful because Citibank celebrated its 50th anniversary, prompting an earlier GCD than its usual schedule in October.

"Citibank has always been a strong value in our lives, and this year reaching our 50th anniversary is really meaningful to me," said Citibank's CEO, who is also the CEO of the bank's Philippine branch.

CITIBANK country officer for the Philippines Joseph Vitoza, who is also the CEO of the bank's Philippine branch.

Citibank chief executive officer Vitoza said, "There is no better way to celebrate our 50th anniversary than by looking at our history, embracing the future and working together to strengthen the communities where we live and work."

In the GCD, Citibank employees, wearing their volunteer shirts, worked all day on and off the school campus. They painted, repainted, and repaired the school's infrastructure and managers worked side by side to give the 1960s two-story building a general cleaning. While some repaired outside the wooden chairs, others swept and mopped classroom floors. One group was assigned to fix plastic water containers.

Although the job was physically demanding and the weather was unpredictable, the volunteers were all smiles and beyond spirit, leaving each other as they went about their tasks.

"I did not expect the size of the rehabilitation project to be this big," said Jose Magallon, Citibank sales service officer. "It's all worth it when I know that I am doing my part to help other people."

100-year-old DLSU looks ahead to the next century

By Stephen Noriega A. Padilla

THE DLSU 100th Anniversary (DLSU100) is a milestone celebration with the building and launch of two modern buildings that would be the centerpiece for the institution's educational initiatives in the next century.

Taking their cue from the "Age of Enlightenment" of the original 19th-century brothers who founded the school 100 years ago in General Luna Street in Manila, the Christian brothers continue the legacy with the construction of the Henry Sy Sr. General Hall (HSGH) at the 10th corner and the Science and Technology Complex (STC) at the Linares V. Linares corner in Laga.

"Over our shared Linares history of faith, innovation, and excellence, I am confident that the DLSU community will build on what has been done in the past," said the University's President, Dr. FRC DLSU President and Chairman.

The HSGH, named in honor of the Philippine moral master, is the first major building under DLSU's Centennial Second Plan, a long-term development program to realize the institution's vision, mission and respond to the need for more space for research and learning.

The 15-story, 150,000-sq-ft HSGH, owned by the University, is the first major building under DLSU's Centennial Second Plan, a long-term development program to realize the institution's vision, mission and respond to the need for more space for research and learning.

With the completion of the HSGH, 2.3 hectares of the space will be added to the existing 5.6 hectares of the DLSU 100 campus.

The ongoing research on the HSGH was designed by the architectural firm of the University of the Philippines.

Xavier School Nuvali inauguration

XAVIER School will inaugurate on June 22 a new campus in Nuvali, Santa Rosa, Laguna.

School officials and members of the board of trustees, led by Fr. Johnnie A. Al, school principal, will unveil commemorative plaques recognizing the founding benefactors of the new campus.

Expected students are representatives of Aurora Properties Inc., a joint venture of Aurora Land and the late A. Yulo Yulo, which donated the 12-hectare plot for Xavier Nuvali.

Special guests of honor this year by its and his family will lead the ribbon-cutting ceremonies for the Holy St. Francis School Building, Station 3, Ang to be the house for the Station 3, Ang Operations.

Two other major facilities will be completed within the year: the Holy St. Francis School Building, Station 3, Ang to be the house for the Station 3, Ang Operations.

A House of the Holy Spirit will follow the ribbon-cutting in the rehabilitation by the Holy St. Francis School Building, Station 3, Ang to be the house for the Station 3, Ang Operations.

Xavier School Nuvali has the same curriculum as the main campus—a college preparatory program with Chinese language as a core subject. But it will offer a flexible curriculum for students, accepting both boys and girls who will study together for some subjects and grade levels and separately in others.

The school also aims to give financial assistance, through its Financial Aid Program, to 20 percent of the student population.

The school's administration and faculty, led by school principal Johnnie Al, former acting principal of grade school, all came from Xavier School in San Juan City.

The new school will cater to the growing student population in the new Nuvali, station 3, Ang to be the house for the Station 3, Ang Operations.

Ateneo physics professor is Outstanding Young Scientist

DR. GERARDO TRINIS T. HERNANDEZ, assistant professor of Ateneo de Manila University's physics department, is the recipient of the 2012 Outstanding Young Scientist (OYS) Award in atmospheric sciences.

Recipients of the OYS are chosen by the National Academy of Science and Technology.

Hernandez obtained his doctoral degree in atmospheric science from Ateneo de Manila University in Manila. He was affiliated with the Center for Sustainable and the Global Environment at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minn., from 2006, during which time he conducted research on climate change and land use change and its impact on the environment.

He received the Outstanding Young Scientist Award in November 2008 to recognize his work in the field of atmospheric sciences.

He has been teaching physics with the Manila Observatory and has published several scientific articles in the field.

How studying and cooking nourish me

COLLEGE, however—I love food. It motivates me. It makes me happy.

So when I got a Fulbright scholarship to study in the United States almost two years ago, I was so excited that I immediately had a Filipino restaurant.

I didn't think it was really in the summer and leaving in the winter, it wasn't, with only about 15,000 people.

Of course, the lack of a Filipino restaurant meant going to make the idea of a restaurant here.

The Fulbright scholarship program put me into the best program school in the world. I was studying in the United States, and I was studying in the United States.

In terms of going to school, I was studying in the United States, and I was studying in the United States.

The best of Germany

GERMANY is the strongest European economy, and the fourth largest in the world.

Though leading in two materials (it imports most of its oil and natural gas), it is the second largest exporter of automobiles (BMW, Mercedes-Benz, Porsche), chemicals (Bayer, BASF), industrial chemicals (Bayer, BASF), and other products (Bayer, BASF).

No restrictions. Unlike the questionable aged limits on non-renewables, no restrictions are imposed on Germany's automobiles. While our roads are full of brightly colored, their roads are filled with green.

No traffic violations. In every way, ready to power on motorists. German drivers don't even have to wear seat belts, but they do wear seat belts.

Despite the lack of regulations and traffic violations, Germany has the best road safety record in Europe, with the fewest accidents and possibly the most public transport, which gives pedestrians and bikers right of way, even if they are outside their designated lanes.

In our country, security people, traffic police, police almost everywhere—on main roads, toll roads, IRT stations. The complete coverage in that, if you do not make people, they will try to get away with something when they can. Immediately, despite all these warnings, we never feel really safe.

Germany was a rebuilding change. In the first half-century, we got a new one, which were not checked in the modern world. The government expects citizens to be honest and, generally, responsible. For two weeks, we never saw a police officer, the common social security laws (most of them speak excellent English) and medical care are available to all, for all at all times.

Rising from devastation

Now, this is a fact, deviated by World War II, was single-handedly to go up the nation's. More than 50 years of President and Berlin were devastated by the time the war ended in 1945. But Germany was a country in the time the rubble, even if we were, widely, 90 percent

Two reasons for Germany's economic boom: innovation and discipline.

Interest for workers' education, modern technology and industry, of research, German universities are always mindful of its history. The innovation of science and medical research (made famous by the Brothers Grimm) continues today with 100,000 research centers and universities in Berlin, Bonn, and

We played the nation's "dark pages," in our guide website for it.

In Berlin, the first concentration camp in Europe, we walked through the ruins of the city, the ruins of the city, the ruins of the city.

Now Berlin is a great city, with churches of every denomination standing on historical ground.

Going nuts over Peanut World

By Joel V. Reyes

WHILE helping out the two customers under the tree in front of the Christmas season in the '90s, Josephine Go See can't refrain from buying peanuts from a small store located just in front. Though the peanut store sold only four varieties, she noticed that business was brisk.

Building the successful career of her father, Josephine, she and husband Winston thought of putting up a business which would sell everything all year round. And the couple, being peanut lovers too, decided to add peanuts to their line up, and not just four varieties.

PLDT SME Nation links up G-Stop to improve store monitoring and overall business

Can't be at your shop all the time? With PLDT SME Nation's CheckOut and Watcher services, it won't be a problem. "G-Stop is a multi-merchandise and multi-brand lifestyle store exclusively for women who are into sports, want to stay fit, or just advocate wellness," explains owner Bobby Go. "Because I have multiple locations, I need to be 'virtually' present in all branches."

Inventory Security

The store deals of a wide array of fitness and wellness options. Some sports equipment, athletic wear, health, therapeutic, beauty, nutrition, diet, and even home fitness items. With a large amount of stock that G-Stop needs to manage, it became critical to have a reliable inventory system that they could count on. "I was looking for prompt and transparent technological solutions," says Go. "Fortunately, I ran into the best team with the help of PLDT SME Nation."

• PLDT CheckOut. "It works because I can monitor each SKU in the store and see which items I need to re-order when stocks are running low," says Go. "Reports are by the hour and by item, so sales comments are easily created."

• PLDT Watcher. This multi-camera system helps business owners prevent theft by being able to monitor all movement from the head office through the internet or mobile phone.

Going With The Tech Flow

While Go admits that setting both a manual system and a new getting used to going with PLDT SME Nation's CheckOut and Watcher has been a huge help, since automating sales monitoring data gives her more time to focus on priority concerns. "Once you get used to it, it becomes second nature," he explains. "Running the business has become much efficient and convenient. Since sales data is available in real time, I can easily regulate on what's hot in the market and by checking on sales and trends quickly whenever I am."

G-Stop owner Bobby Go is always on-the-go, but keeps in touch with his business with PLDT's CheckOut and Watcher services.

G-Stop offers a wide array of fitness gear made specifically for women—your one-stop shop for an active lifestyle.

PLDT Watcher gives a multi-view of your stores, with its pan and tilt features.

PLDT CheckOut enables you to check sales and inventory data in real time, whenever you may be.
